AUNT RACHEL SPEER, Dear Madam:—We are seated in family—myself, wife, her sister and four children. All have been sick two summers with malaria. Quinine would break it up but leaves us weak and dispirited in the head and when we stopped the quinine the fever returned. Many people praised your Peruvian Bitters and our physician told us to use it. I feel grateful to you because your Bitters has cured every one of us after using it 21 days. We used it five and six times a day, taking a table spoonful of the Bitters in a small wine glass of Speer's Port Wine.

NEW SHRUB THAT IS A REMEDY.
A Rare Cure for Kidney Diseases and Rheumatism.
It is no doubt true that next to consumption, more people die yearly from diseases of the kidneys than from any other cause. In some respects kidney disease is the most dangerous of all maladies, because it usually has made much progress before the victim is aware of its existence. It is, therefore, with great pleasure we commend to our readers the recent discovery in East India of the Kava-Kava shrub, which has proved a most powerful remedy for diseases of the kidneys, rheumatism, or other ailments caused by uric acid in the blood. The cures wrought by this new remedy are indeed most remarkable. Many who have suffered from the most severe forms of the disease, have been completely cured in from twenty to forty days by the Kava-Kava shrub. In the New York Weekly World of Sept. 10th, the testimony of Rev. W. B. Moore, D. D., of Washington, D. C., was given, describing his years of suffering from kidney disease and Rheumatism, and his rapid cure by Alkavis. Rev. John H. Watson of Sunset, Texas, a minister of the gospel of thirty years' service, was struck down at his post of duty by kidney disease. After hovering between life and death for two months, and all his doctors having failed, he took Alkavis, and was completely restored to health and strength and is fulfilling his duties as minister of the gospel. Mr. R. C. Wood, a prominent attorney of Lowell, Indiana, was cured of Rheumatism, Kidney and Bladder disease of ten years' standing by Alkavis. Mr. Wood describes himself as being in constant misery, often compelled to rise ten times during the night on account of weakness of the bladder. He was treated by all his home physicians without the least benefit and finally completely cured in a few weeks by Alkavis. The testimony is undoubted and really wonderful. Any of our readers who are so unfortunate as to suffer from kidney disorders or Rheumatism should write to the Church Kidney Cure Co., of 422 Fourth avenue, New York, who will gladly send them free by mail prepaid a Large Case of the Kava-Kava Compound, so that they can test its value for themselves. This generous free offer is made to prove the wonderful curative powers of this new botanic discovery.

BIGAMY EASY HERE.
NOT HARD TO BE AN INNOCENT CRIMINAL.
Divorce Laws Differ in All States—One May Remarry in Some but Not in Others—Innumerable Injustices May Be Practiced.

IT IS the easiest thing in the world to commit bigamy in this country, without knowing you are doing it, says the New York Herald. In fact, the wonderful complexity of the laws of the various states and territories and their radical differences sometimes make it a difficult matter, if one remarries after divorce and doesn't stick to his own state, to avoid becoming quite innocently a bigamist. The fact that a person has more than one husband or wife living at the same time may or may not constitute bigamy. Every state in the union has treated double marriage, contracted under certain conditions, as a crime and attached to it penalties more or less severe. Double marriage and, incidentally, the charge of bigamy may arise in two classes of cases; first, where one marries relying upon the belief that a former marriage has been dissolved by death, which is presumed on account of the prolonged absence of one of the party, and second, where one marries relying upon the belief that a prior marriage has been dissolved by a judgment of divorce. Where absence is the ground of justification for a double marriage the law declares how long such absence must continue before a second marriage is permitted. This period of time varies in different states. Where a judgment of divorce is the ground of justification a charge of bigamy may be sustained either because the divorce is void or because it is valid. This proposition seems to involve a contradiction of terms, but in consequence of the peculiar provisions of laws which exist upon the subject in a number of neighboring and contiguous states independent of each other and absolutely sovereign with regard to divorce legislation, the proposition is literally true. A single example will illustrate this apparent anomaly. In Maryland, if a divorce is granted, the court may, in its discretion, forbid the guilty party to marry during the lifetime of the innocent party and a violation of the prohibition constitutes bigamy. So that a man or woman may be divorced and yet if the guilty party should wed contrary to the judgment of divorce the act would be criminal. His guilt would be established as certainly as if the first marriage had never been dissolved, or as if the judgment of divorce, instead of being valid and binding, were void and of no validity. Bigamous marriages, under the law, are void, or in a few cases, liable to be so declared. This is true in California and Dakota. In California and New York, when the husband or wife of the first marriage has been five years absent and not known to be living in that time, or is generally reputed and believed by the party marrying again to be dead, the second marriage will be valid until its nullity is adjudged by a court of competent jurisdiction. In Iowa a bigamous marriage is void, but if the parties live together after the death of the former husband or wife the second marriage will be valid. The question of geography again presents itself. In some states, if the party has been absent long enough the second marriage will be valid and the returned wanderer will be debarred altogether of his conjugal rights and privileges, while in other states the prolonged absence will protect the parties to the second marriage from the penalties incident upon the charge of bigamy. The ease with which divorces may be obtained in many states has induced persons to visit them and gain a residence for the sole purpose of dissolving the marriage bond, and that object accomplished they frequently return to their place of domicile or drift into other parts of the country and again take upon themselves marital obligations. Children born of these subsequent marriages frequently have to suffer with the parents, by reason of the fact that the states, being independent sovereignties, so far as the law of marriage and divorce is concerned, have chosen to adopt a variety of laws upon the subject, differing radically; and by reason of the haste or eagerness, and often secrecy, with which divorces have been obtained away from home, it frequently happens that the first marriage, which was supposed to have been legally dissolved, was not dissolved at all. For instance, if a wife should succeed in obtaining a divorce in New York for the husband's wrong, and the husband should again marry within the state without waiting for his divorced wife to marry, and without receiving a certificate of good behavior from the court in which the divorce was obtained, after a period of five years, and procuring the decree to be modified so as to permit such guilty husband to marry again, this second marriage in New York is void. If, however, the guilty husband went out of the state and got married the legality of the second marriage would depend upon the law of the state where it took place. If the ceremony was performed in Kansas, in order to successfully defend the charge of bigamy the accused would have to show that by the New York divorce he was not prohibited from marrying again, or, if so prohibited, that the time of such disability had expired. If the second marriage happened to be in Kentucky a divorced person so marrying would have to show that he had been permitted again to marry. If the second alliance was contracted in Massachusetts within two years after the first divorce he would have to show that he was not the guilty cause of the divorce. The same result would follow if the second marriage took place in Minnesota or in Florida. In Missouri a divorced person marrying again must show that the decree of divorce first obtained contained no provision whereby he was forbidden to marry.

THE GREECE OF TO-DAY.
Patriotism That Broke the Fetters of Turkish Domination.
To understand the phenomenal rise of Greece, says the Forum, we must bear in mind that, though the Greeks had been miserably downtrodden by the Turks for 400 years, the best hope of the people, borne by an unholy tribute far away from their mothers' homes and trained into the tools of an inhuman tyranny, and though had it not been for the "untoward event" at Navarino, the whole population of the Morea would have been exterminated beneath the merciless tramp of Turkish hordes, there nevertheless lived behind the outward show of slavish debasement a heart of sturdy independence that cherished the patriotic memories of ages and seized eagerly on every chance that might enable it to stand before the world in the attitude and character that had given it the most prominent place in the history of the human race. The two years' struggle which gave to Greece the right to look Europe in the face as a noble people, determined to die rather than live the slaves of a hateful tyranny, at the same time gave to Europe the assurance that Greece was living Greece again; and Christian conscience and classic memories combined, when once the yoke was broken, to enable the Greeks to show to the world that, in spite of the bombshells of Venice and the sabers of Turkey, not only should a Greek mother bear sons to grow up free from the rapine of Turkish hands, but desolate Athens should rise to her old position and along with Edinburgh, Glasgow and Aberdeen assert its place among famous European cities that combine commercial enterprise with cultivated intelligence. It was this noble, patriotic pride that, in the short space of half a century, turned the little ruined village into an imposing city.

MISJUDGED.
Charley Marshall was traveling up to town. He was the pride of his village. He was but eighteen, and this was his first extended trip alone. He felt as if he were going to seek his fortune, and the fact that he wore a new suit of very correct clothes intensified his enjoyment and his sense of importance.
At one of the midway stations there entered an old man who looked the honest farmer. He wore the high "dickey" and rusty stock of an elder day, and his clothes were very evidently home-made.
Charley took to him at once. He seemed to breathe from the hills; and when the old gentleman wandered in to the seat with him, it was a vivid pleasure to move along and make hospitable room.
Finally the two began to talk together, though the old gentleman kept a distinct air of reserve, and seeing that, Charley redoubled his efforts to make time pass pleasantly.
They reached the city, and made preparations to leave the train.
"Well," said the old gentleman, grasping his carpet-bag and beginning to move toward the door, "I'll bid you good evening."
Charley, very conscious of his new clothes and the splendor with which he was about to burst upon the great world, was still loyal to his homely friend.
"Where do you stop?" he innocently asked.
The other ventured a moment before answering coldly, "The Phoenix hotel."
"Why, that's where I'm going!" said Charley. "Let me have your bag; I'll carry it for you."
Then at last the old gentleman turned upon him and transfixed him with a cold blue eye, in which there was yet a righteous indignation.
"Young man," said he, "I haint said nothin' about it, but I know ye. I live in the country, but I aint quite so green as I may appear. I've read all about you confidence men an' bunce-stealers; and as for you, I don't mind tellin' ye I aint liked your looks from the first!"
A Sure Sign.
Her Brother—"Awfully bad news, sister." The Sister—"What?" Her Brother—"That count of yours is a bogus one." The Sister—"How did you find that out?" Her Brother—"I was telling him today how hard up I was, and he actually offered to lend me $100."—Syracuse Post.
Her Place.
"I see that scientists have figured out there are 700,000,000 people in the world who are only partially dressed." "Well, well! Then the society girl is not one of the 400, but one of the 700,000,000, isn't she?"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Song Birds and Saffrage.
Last year 500,000 song birds were destroyed in this country that women might wear them on their hats. On Cape Cod 40,000 terns were killed for this purpose. In Pennsylvania the slaughter of bobolinks is said to have amounted to 1,000,000, and in parts of Florida the herons are nearly exterminated. This leads the Brooklyn (N. Y.) Eagle to ask: "Can so cruel a creature as woman ask for the right to vote?"
